

TORRENTIAL RAINS FLOOD ENTIRE VALLEY OF ROCK; FULTON DAM GIVES WAY

WAGE FROM STORM OF SUN- DAY NIGHT WILL MOUNT INTO THOUSAND DOLLARS.

SCORES ARE HOMELESS

Saunders' Creek at Edgerton Goes on Rampage Driving a Hundred Families From Their Homes—Railroad Traffic Crippled.

Torrential rains of Sunday night and Monday morning caused floods and washouts throughout the Rock River valley, causing damage which will mount into the thousands, according to reports which reached this city today. Saunders Creek at Edgerton became a raging torrent, driving scores of families from their homes, Rock River rose within a few hours to flood stage of the spring time following the breaking of the dam in the Yahara river at Fulton, and other streams were swollen from the flood taking out highway bridges, and washing deep cuts through railroad embankments, crippling traffic all over this region.

Following one of the warmest days of the year, storms gathered throughout Sunday afternoon and were watched by thousands as they played along the horizon from the northwest to the northeast. It was after eight o'clock Sunday night when the storm broke here and it raged almost without interruption until four o'clock this morning.

The precipitation since nine o'clock Sunday night, according to figures at the government observation station at the Haddies farm, was 3.94 inches, one of the heaviest rainfalls on record in this part of the state. Accompanied by wind and lightning the storm raged with increasing fury, interrupted by an occasional lull, for fully six hours. A number of Janesville business firms suffered heavy damage.

Upon investigation this morning, it was discovered that merchandise stored in the cellar under the Woolworth store was destroyed, the loss probably running as high as a thousand dollars. There was close to twenty-five inches of water in the cellar at ten this morning, and efforts to pump water out were being made. Soap, paper dolls and other articles were packed away near the bottom of the cellar, while the goods near the top were saved.

At the Haddies farm, only slight damage to trucks, despite the fact that water found its way to the cellar underneath the store to a depth of two feet. The old fire engine was ordered to pump out the water, but it was found that it was not strong enough to pump the water out of the cellar.

About eight inches of water was in the basement of the Smith Drug company, but no damage was done. Under the Howard store, a number of boxes of goods were packed on the shelves were saved. Owing to the fact that the Golden Eagle cellar bottom is ordinarily five feet above the water level, no damage was done. The water at noon was about eight inches from the cellar bottom.

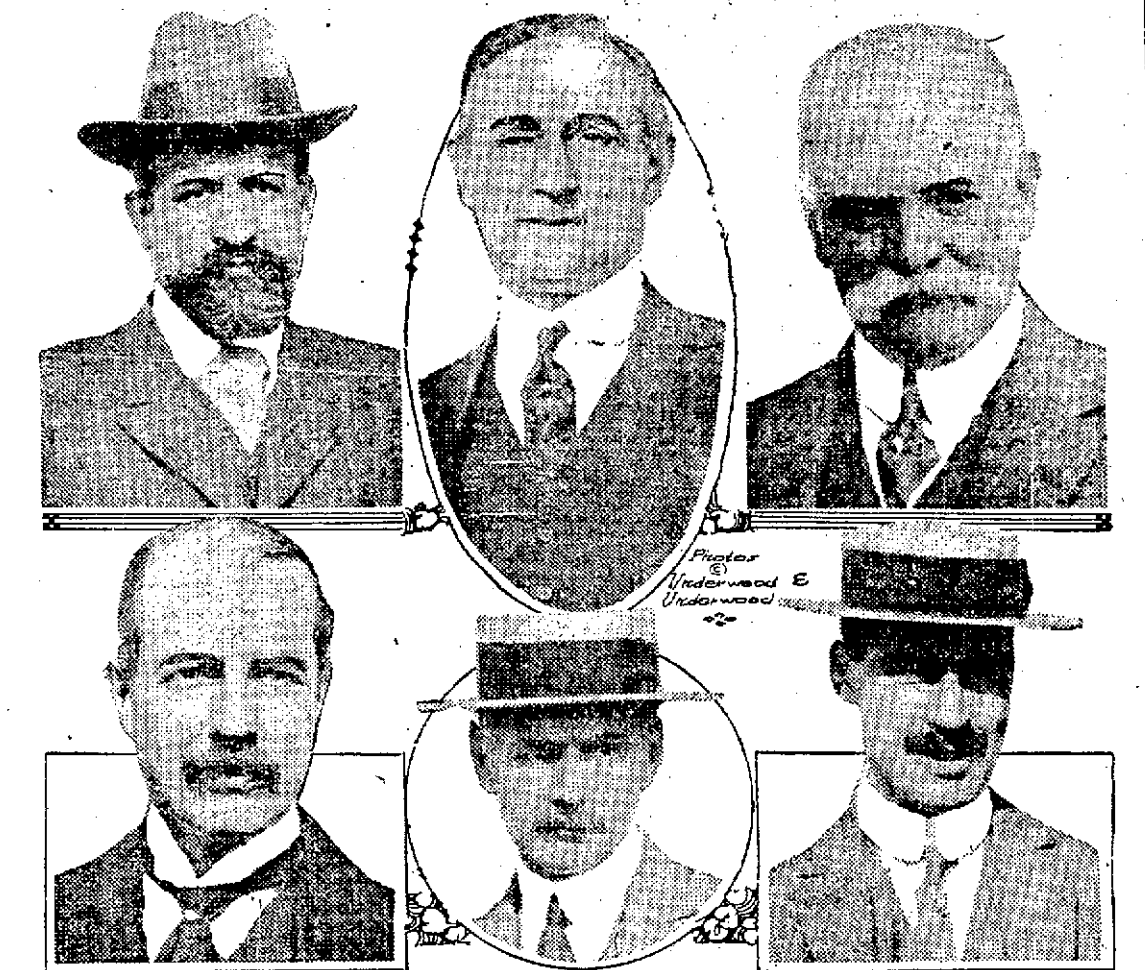

Basements under Klassen's Clothing store, Olin's Jewellery store and a number of other stores were flooded. The basement of the Red Cross drug company, causing slight damage.

Dam Breaks at Fulton.
The extreme height of the river is due directly to the breaking of the Fulton dam at eleven-thirty last night. The rush of water was not noticed until early this morning in this city, many of the store heads along the river being able to see the rushing water before the great amount of water reached the city. It was believed that the water rose about three feet in two hours. At the Electric Company, power was cut off at noon, and the water rose to a level of 3.8 feet Sunday.

Within the past twenty-four hours the temperature dropped from 87 to 65, as low as 63 in the lower portions. The forecast for today was partly cloudy.

Six representatives of England and France are in this country on what is believed to be the most important and comprehensive financial mission ever attempted. They are arranging with United States bankers for a credit of from $500,000,000 to $750,000,000. This credit may be extended to $2,000,000,000 by the end of the year.

ONE TROOPER KILLED IN BANDITS' ATTACK

TWO OTHER UNITED STATES SOLDIERS WOUNDED BY MEXICANS NEAR BROWNSVILLE.

CONFEREES TO MEET
Secretary Lansing Will Arrange For Conference of Pan-American Envoys Soon—Gen. Villa Executes Urbina.

Brownsville, Tex., Sept. 13.—One United States trooper was killed and two others wounded, one probably fatally when a gang of Mexican bandits early today attacked the American patrol of seven men at the irrigation pumping camp several miles up the river from this point.

The soldier killed was Private Kraft, who received a wound through the head. Private Forney was shot through the breast, and is expected to die. Private Walsh also was wounded, but his condition is not considered serious.

Pan-American Meeting Soon.
Washington, Sept. 13.—The next step in the Mexican situation will be taken by the Pan-American conferees as soon as arrangements can be made for them to meet. Secretary Lansing talked with President Wilson today on General Carranza's proposal to discuss international affairs, but nothing was disclosed regarding the conference. Unofficial reports have reached here that a supplementary note is to be sent from Carranza forces outlining in detail what might be made matters of joint consideration. This would include war indemnities and guarantees to foreigners.

The steamer Morro Castle reached Vera Cruz yesterday large quantity of war munitions for Carranza. He is said to have placed large orders to prepare for embargo on arms by the United States.

Villa Executes Urbina.
Confirmation of the execution of General Tomas Urbina by General Villa was received directly from General Villa today, by his agent here. An explanation of Urbina's execution, General Villa sent this statement:

"Under these conditions," the Villa statement said, "and taking into consideration the increasing insubordination and cruelty of General Urbina and propaganda and disintegration that he was conducting in the very body of the convention army, and his complete lack of respect for the life and property of nationals and foreigners, I deemed it proper to interview him for the purpose of impressing upon him the necessity of an immediate change in action and behavior."

FIRE EXTINGUISHED ONE LINER CARRYING ITALIAN RESERVISTS

FABRE LINE RECEIVES WORD THAT 1,600 PERSONS ARE SAFE AND THAT VESSEL IS BEING ESCORTED TO AZORES.

New York, Sept. 13.—The Fabre line steamship Sant Anna which was on fire in mid-ocean is safe and proceeding under escort to the Azores, according to a message received at the line's local office today.

New York, Sept. 13.—The steamship Sant Anna bound from New York to Marseilles and Naples with some 1,600 Italian reservists aboard was safe today in the Atlantic three or four days sail from the nearest port. A wireless message that reached the station at Cape Race late last night brought the first news of her plight. It gave her position latitude 40.23 north, longitude 47.30 west, or about 850 miles southeast of Halifax.

The local officers of the Fabre line, received no word during the morning hours today regarding their steamer. Sant Anna, bound from New York for Italian ports with more than 1,600 Italian reservists and a large cargo of foodstuffs, which had been reported on fire about 850 miles southeast from Halifax in wireless message received at a later point late last night.

RUSSIAN SEAPLANE LOST IN AN ATTACK
Germans Shoot Down One Hydroplane, Occupants Being Taken Prisoners.

Berlin, wireless to Sarville, Sept. 13.—The Russians lost one of their seaplanes in the attack by these craft on a small German cruiser at Windau, officially reported yesterday. A statement issued today tells of an attack by several Russian hydroplanes, and a cruiser and of their dropping eight bombs, all of which missed the mark, and adds: "One hydroplane was shot down and brought to Windau. Its occupants, two Russian officers, were made prisoners."

TURKS WEAKENING ON DARDANELLS' FRONT

SITUATION OF TURKISH ARMY CLAIMED TO BE VERY PRECARIOUS BY AMERICAN.

Athens, Sept. 13.—An American citizen of standing in Athens has received advice from Constantinople, which, he says, are trustworthy, that the situation of the Turkish army and government is unfavorable. According to his information, the position of the Turkish force defending the Dardanelles is precarious. It is said the Turkish front, thinned by heavy losses, which the fighting has entailed on both sides, is finding it increasingly difficult to hold the line against the French and British.

More Christians Massacred.
He adds that the earlier massacres of Christians in Asia Minor, are being duplicated in the present instance and in some cases only a comparatively small part of the expelled Americans reached concentration camps alive.

Henry Morgenthau, American ambassador at Constantinople, has exerted every effort to protect the Armenians, but apparently his endeavors have been unavailing. It is stated that the refugees to look out for Armenian children, were turned back, and that a number of young Armenians, students at the American college at Constantinople fell into the hands of the Turks.

Teutons Make Progress.
London, Sept. 13.—The Austro-German armies on the eastern front, still striving for definite results, are making progress everywhere except along Galician frontier where Russian report further success. In the north where the Russian line has been strengthened by withdrawal of forces, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg is directing a violent drive toward Drinsk and at crossing of the Dvina.

In the center, Crown Prince Leopold has forced his way over the Zimnianska, and is attacking in the vicinity of Skidel. In the south, Field Marshal Von Mackensen is pressing eastward toward the town. Movements have resulted in the capture of several thousand Russians.

The final object of the central powers in this campaign, is still a matter of conjecture, but General Ruzicki, commander of the northern Russian army, declares positively that there is no danger that Petrograd will fall this year before the guns of the invaders. On the other fronts, there is little to report.

Thousands of Fugitives.
London, Sept. 13.—A wholesale exodus of the people and virtually all of the townships and villages of the province of Grodnow has been reported by the correspondent at Minsk of the Reuter Telegram company. The people are fleeing after the Baranovsk, a junction point of the railway leading to Vilna, Rovno, Brest-Litovsk and Minsk.

ZEPPELINS AGAIN VISIT EAST COAST

German Air Raiders Call on English Again—London Papers Make Cry for Reprisals.

London, Sept. 13.—Another Zeppelin raid was made over the east coast of England last night. There were no casualties. Official announcement said on the nights of 12th and 13th Zeppelins appeared and dropped bombs, destroying telephone and telegraph wires.

The demand is made by the Globe for effective measures of reprisals for the Zeppelin raids.

"It is useless to disguise the fact that nothing big or strong will be done unless the government is aroused to take action by public opinion," the Globe says. It urges that a public meeting be held to force the government's hand, and calls attention to the fact that property valued at millions of pounds, owned by Germans, is now in the hands of the public trustee.

"Let the Germans realize," the Globe continues, "that for every peaceful citizen in his country that is bombed, a dozen peaceful towns in Germany will be bombed from the air. Let them also know that for every life lost, every humble dwelling destroyed we shall call for a liberal sum from the monies of wealthy Germans who fattened off our commerce and who draws a dividend from our people. The effect would be magical."

REPORTS THAT VILLA WAS KILLED, FALSE

MEXICAN CHIEFTAIN RETURNS SAFELY FROM EXPEDITION TO SECURE SECRETED LOOT.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 13.—General Francisco Villa returned to Jimenez on Saturday from Rosario, where he was with General Tomas Urbina's forces for $5,000,000 loot Urbina is alleged to have secreted on his ranch against Villa's demands.

It is said that Villa, who at one time was allied with Urbina, has the warehouses at his ranch filled with loot, and that he has hidden in the mountains many millions of gold, silver and jewelry. The estimate of $5,000,000 is said to be conservative, since the city of Durango, in one raid, he secured $800,000 from one bank and as much more from civilians, merchants and jewelers.

SMASHING RUSS LINES

TEUTONS DRIVE ON ALONG RUSSIAN FRONT EXCEPT AT GALICIA WHERE SLAVS HALT ADVANCE.

Athens, Sept. 13.—An American citizen of standing in Athens has received advice from Constantinople, which, he says, are trustworthy, that the situation of the Turkish army and government is unfavorable. According to his information, the position of the Turkish force defending the Dardanelles is precarious. It is said the Turkish front, thinned by heavy losses, which the fighting has entailed on both sides, is finding it increasingly difficult to hold the line against the French and British.

NEW ADVISORY BOARD WILL MEET OCT. 6TH

THOMAS A. EDISON, CHAIRMAN OF NAVAL BOARD OF SCIENTISTS AND INVENTORS, WILL PRESIDE AT SESSIONS.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Officials between plans today for the first meeting of the new naval advisory board which will direct United States activities toward improving American navy through science and invention, and Secretary Daniels' announcement of the board's personnel said it would have its first session in his office on Oct. 6.

The twenty-two members of the board, exclusive of Mr. Edison, were nominated by eleven scientific and engineering societies at the request of Secretary Daniels, who sought to mobilize the country's inventive genius for the navy as a step in national defense plans. The board's recommendations and conclusions will have great weight, Mr. Daniels said, in forming of the administration's proposal to congress and in the operation and development of the navy.

ARABIC CASE ARBITRATION STILL PENDS

LANSING ANNOUNCES CONFERENCE WITH WILSON REACHED NO DECISION TO PEACEFUL SETTLEMENT.

BERNSTORFF IS ACTIVE

GERMAN AMBASSADOR EVIDENTLY STRAINING EVERY STRING TO ALLEVIATE COMPLICATIONS WITH THE UNITED STATES.

Washington, Sept. 13.—Secretary Lansing announced today after a conference with President Wilson that no decision had yet been reached by the United States on Germany's proposal to arbitrate the Arabic case. It was indicated in official quarters that both Germany and the United States agreed that to arbitrate the question of indemnity, involved arbitrating the justification and the facts.

Secretary Lansing, after his visit to the president, returned to the state department to await his conference with Count Von Bernstorff, German ambassador, who is trying to bring the situation to a point where this government will agree to submit the question to arbitration.

It was generally believed that before the United States will enter into formal negotiations on the Arabic case in particular, nor any phase on the general subject which might include sinking of the Lusitania, it will be necessary first to confirm Germany's assurances of the cessation of attacks by submarines on liners.

The declaration that the United States would not discuss the Lusitania case until it had been established whether the sinking of the Arabic was a justified act, increased the importance of the decision on the Arabic note.

Will Take Archibald.
Acting under instructions from the White House, agents of the department of justice will meet James P. J. Archibald, the American correspondent involved in the case of Dr. Dumba, Austrian ambassador, when he lands at New York on the steamer Rotterdam from Holland. Archibald carried Dr. Dumba's letter to the Vienna foreign office, disclosing plans to cause a strike in an American munitions plant.

All officials are maintaining strict silence regarding the Archibald case, but it became known today that United States Attorney Marshall at New York has been instructed by the department of justice, which takes the view that the government is wrong for considering whether Archibald violated a federal law. The question of whether he actually knew the contents of papers he carried, probably will be the deciding factor in what action the government ultimately takes toward him.

The statute on which the government is proceeding to fix a fine of not more than $2,000 and imprisonment of not more than three years for its violation. There was no indication today of any further movement by the government in the east of Captain Franz von Papen, military attaché of the German embassy, for whom Archibald also carried a letter, and who was mentioned with the strike plan.

Bernstorff Optimistic.
Washington, Sept. 13.—Count Von Bernstorff, optimistic despite growing concern here over relations between the United States and the central powers, was back in Washington today for a conference with Secretary Lansing. His report is that the situation developed by the sinking of the Arabic. The ambassador it was understood would begin an informal discussion of the Lusitania case with the secretary.

Lansing's report is that the supplementary note to the German note on the Arabic with the hope of opening the way to negotiations for an amicable adjustment.

Administration officials maintained silence not only on the Arabic situation, but on the Dumba case. Nevertheless, it was understood that while German explanation of the sinking of the Arabic was considered unsatisfactory, the United States would consent to arbitration of the reparations issue, if the discussion were limited to the question of fact as to whether the submarine's commander was justified in launching his torpedo. That would not involve general principles for which the Washington government has contended.

Confer for Half Hour.
Ambassador Von Bernstorff's conference with Secretary Lansing lasted just half an hour. At its conclusion when he left the state department, he told inquirers:

FINE EXHIBITS BUTTER AND CHEESE AT STATE FAIR PRESENT WEEK.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
West Allis, Sept. 13.—The best exhibit of butter ever brought together in Wisconsin and the largest showing of cheese ever seen anywhere on the American continent.

This is the verdict of the group of experienced judges of dairy products who have finished scoring the exhibits of butter and cheese to be shown at the Wisconsin State Fair this week. The grade of workmanship shown by the samples is excellent, some 45 per cent of the butter shown being in the high grade classes, said C. E. Lee, assistant dairy and food commissioner, who together with J. R. Ross of the Iowa Dairy and Food Commission and N. W. Hepburn of the Illinois College of Agriculture judged the butter.

About eleven per cent of the exhibits passed the 96 mark, and only six per cent of the total number of tubs dropped below a score of 90 points, which is something unusual for so large and varied an assortment. The highest exhibit scored 96.33.

As far as has been determined the quality of the cheese shown at the State Fair is good. Its quantity, however, is the striking point, there being an exceptionally heavy showing of Swiss cheese and other foreign types. The feature of the cheese booth is the presence of 25 huge drum Swiss cheeses weighing from 250 to 300 pounds apiece.

Cheese judging is not finished. The men in charge of the work are A. D. Bruhn, Secretary of the Wisconsin Cheese Makers' Association, J. D. Cannon, and A. L. Aderhold of the Dairy and Food Commission. Foreign samples are being scored by E. H. Harris of the Dairy School, University of Wisconsin, and Jacob Lehmann of the Dairy and Food Commission.

VERY LITTLE DAMAGE IS DONE TO STREETS

Inspection of Streets Shows Raina Do No Damage to Pavements Except in Small Way.

Janesville's street drainage system escaped any serious damage from the effects of the storm as an inspection trip over the city this morning failed to show any except minor wash-outs and a few clogged drains. It was a fortunate fact that the drains, manholes and sewers had been thoroughly cleaned last week and the sewers and gutters were able to carry off the excess amount of water without trouble.

In the places where the water ran down hills and the streets had not been cleaned, holes of the gravel or macadam had been gouged out and washed to the sewers. On side streets or thoroughfares where there is no curb and gutters, the mud is several feet thick. Roadmen hitting brick and paving material for the construction work found difficulty in going over side streets with heavy loads. The main trunk of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway above the Hanson factory the wagons would sink to the hubs with the loads of brick and two teams were necessary to drag the wagons out of the mud hole. The rain had stopped excavation work on Milton avenue and at the present time they are hauling the Parington paving brick to the curb. Grading work being laid by the Gund-Graham contractors on the asphalt-macadam pavement on Wisconsin and Bluff streets.

NOTABLES EXPECTED AT GOLF CLUB FETE

Famous Personalities and Otherwise Will Compete in Athletic Events On Sports Night.

Several people of national and international reputation have indicated their intention of being present at the golf club fete, tomorrow, Tuesday evening, and it will not be at all surprising if such prominent folks as Dr. Dumba, Billy Sunday, Lydia Pinkham, and others would share in the competition for prizes in some of the athletic events. A handsome lot of prizes has been selected and the fact that the opportunity is open to all present, and that the fete is a lively, social and some dark horses will likely develop. The indoor putting contest, especially, will be a test of skill and some advance practice work is said to be taking place by those who expect to make a top notch score. The other events will be "pulled" off during the evening on schedule time without the aid of doctors or undertakers. A bridge game for ladies occurs in the afternoon and the usual supper at six o'clock sharp.

Mrs. J. L. Wilcox will have charge of the club day on Tuesday evening, Sept. 21. Mixed foursome matches are scheduled for the afternoon for which attractive prizes will be offered.

FAMILY FOOD

Crisp, Toothsome, and Requires No Cooking.

A little boy down in N. C. asked his mother to write an account of how Grape-Nuts food had helped their family.

She says Grape-Nuts was first brought to her attention when she visited.

"While I was there I used the food regularly. I gained weight and felt so well that when I returned home I began using Grape-Nuts in the family regularly.

"My little 18-months-old baby shortly after being weaned was very ill while teething. She was sick nine weeks and we tried everything. She became so emaciated that it was painful to handle her and we thought we were going to lose her. One day a happy thought urged me to try Grape-Nuts soaked in a little warm milk.

"Well it worked like a charm, and she began to take it regularly and improvement set in at once. She grew well and round and fat as possible on Grape-Nuts.

"Sometimes ago several of the family were stricken with La Grippe at the same time, and during the worst stages they could not relish anything in the shape of food but Grape-Nuts and oranges, everything else was nauseating.

"We all appreciate what your famous food has done for our family."

SEASON OPENS WITH OPERETTA

Theatrical Season Begins With a Bright and Happy Musical Comedy, "The Lady in Red."

The theatrical season opened Saturday and Sunday nights at Myers Theatre with "The Lady in Red," the latest theatrical entertainment that is being shown in this city. The play is a musical comedy in three acts, and there is action aplenty. The musical score was rich in melodic charm, and the lyrics were clever and witty. The production was well received by the audience, and the cast was praised for their performance.

The theme of the piece centers about a painting of the beautiful lady in red, which is the subject of much mischief. Sylvia Stafford, a beautiful society debutante, appears on the beach in a daring bathing suit. She is seen by Bruce Vernon, a wealthy young artist, upon whom she makes a deep impression and who paints her picture from memory. The painting received first prize at the Academy of Arts, but in the meantime has been stolen by a thief. Sylvia meets the artist for the first time at the exhibition, and there she hears of the painting. She relates to him the story of the painting, and he agrees to help her find it. The play is a well-acted and well-received production.

An exceptional list of principals will be featured in "The Lady in Red," with charming Vali Vail in the title role and Glenn Hall and his magnificent voice plays the part of the artist. The play is a well-acted and well-received production. The cast includes: Vali Vail, Glenn Hall, and others. The play is a well-acted and well-received production.

DR. PLATTS BODY IS BROUGHT TO MILTON

Recognized Leader of Seven Day Baptist Denomination Who Died in Chicago is Buried at Milton.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Milton, Sept. 13.—The body of Rev. Lewis A. Platts, D. D., who died at the home of his son, Dr. L. A. Platts, in Chicago, on Wednesday, was brought here, his home, for burial. Dr. Platts spent his boyhood here and graduated from Milton Academy in the class of '68. After his marriage he took a theological course in the East, and was pastor of several churches, and for some years was editor of the Sabbath Recorder, the denominational organ of the Seventh-day Baptists. For several years he was pastor of the church here and after retiring made this village his home. He was one of the strong leaders in that denomination and during his long residence here he won the respect and esteem, not only of his parishioners, but of the community at large. He leaves a widow and son. The funeral services were held Saturday from the S. D. B. church, which, although the largest in the village, was crowded beyond its capacity by friends who wished to pay their last respects to a good man gone beyond. The services were conducted by Rev. H. H. Jordan, assisted by Rev. G. W. Burdick, Prof. Albert Whitford, Rev. W. D. Burdick and Mrs. Towneand Carr. The great profusion of flowers, from societies and friends, witnessed the esteem.

Mr. Davies and Miss Davis, of Janesville, visited at S. Green's Sunday.

The rain and electric storm last night was the worst in years. Gutter could not carry off the water fast enough and it got into J. H. Granger's cellar, but not very much damage resulted, but of the community at large. Miss A. Cora Clarke has gone to Indiana, where she will teach Domestic Science the coming year.

H. B. Crandall opened his new meat market Monday. It is up-to-date in all respects and there is none finer in the country.

Professor A. E. Whitford is acting as president of Milton College during President Davis' absence.

Mrs. J. M. Greer returned to Milwaukee Saturday.

Arthur Clarke and wife of Edgerton, visited Milton relatives Saturday.

SUPERINTENDENT OF U. S. NAVAL ACADEMY

Captain Edward W. Eberle.

Captain Edward W. Eberle, at present commandant of the Washington navy yard, is Admiral Fullam's successor as superintendent of the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Admiral Fullam has been transferred to the command of the Puget Sound reserve fleet. His transfer is said to be due to the political enemies he made at the recent Annapolis investigation. Captain Eberle is to assume his new duties as soon as Admiral Fullam returns from sea with the Academy practice squadron.

NEW "Y" SECRETARY IN METHODIST PULPIT

C. R. BEARMORE DELIVERS SER-
MON AT MORNING SER-VICE YESTERDAY.

CHRIST, THE REVEALER

Takes Text From Eighth Chapter of St. John for Powerful Discourse on Christ's Revelation.

C. R. Bearmore, successor to J. C. Allen, as secretary of the Janesville Young Men's Christian association, delivered the morning sermon yesterday at the Cargill Memorial Methodist church. Mr. Bearmore, previous to assuming work and uplift of young men, has been a minister, occupying a pulpit for many years.

Mr. Bearmore's sermon was, "Christ, the Revealer." The text: "I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." This was taken from chapter VIII, verses 12-20, St. John, the subject being the revelation of the truth.

"When Jesus, in the form of man," said Mr. Bearmore, "came to the earth to dwell amongst its people, He found all in darkness. There was something needed to absolve the people of this dark world. He came to prove this by taking up their histories, ancient histories, and by going over the period previous to the coming of Jesus.

"Egypt had been the great nation, the leader of that day. Egypt worshipped beasts and reptiles. They had gods in many forms. Greece, the center of the then known world's philosophy, education, and other admirable beauties of civilization, worshipped gods by the millions. Other countries were similar. The ten tribes had given over to idolatry.

"In Judea alone, Judea, the little tribe and nation, was the only real center of true religion maintained. It was only one little light shining forth in a world of darkness.

"Such were the circumstances when the savior was born. He came and shone upon the world, penetrating through the darkness and with his system of philosophy, touched the dark side of sin and illuminated the entire world with the light that was never to be hidden nor extinguished through all ages. God gave this light to the world to show the people their sins in their sins and wrongdoings. Jesus said: 'I am the light of the world, and the world is full of this great light, and this great light never has been extinguished.'

"There are the men of twenty-five and fifty years ago who prophesied that in a few short years the Bible would be a thing of the past, an ancient history as it were? Where are these men now? Where are the prophets who started humanity for the most part a decade ago? Their teachings have proven utterly false. Christianity has been on the increase and illumination of the world with its doctrine. These men said, 'There is no God; but their theories have been exploded over and over again.'

"Jesus Christ is the light essential to character. In His self He reveals the soft divine characters of God. Jesus Christ in the flesh reveals God and God is a God of love and a God of mercy because He is so revealed. In His self, He is a God of pardoning mercy and God of pitying love. These have been revealed to us many times.

He came to this earth to teach us and reveal to us the plan of salvation. He went away, it is true, but He sent the gifts of comfort to alleviate us and bring us to Him after our short stay here. When he went he sent the Pentecost. From then on to this time, in Pentecost, we pass through the conviction of our sins. We feel ourselves sinners before God. How miserable the Redeemer shows us that. But did not He leave us this plan of salvation free when he said, 'I am the way and the light.' His 'Come all to Me of ye that Labor and I will give you rest,' made us glad in salvation and in His grace. He revealed the future state too, thereby the life after death.

"If man dies will he live again? is a question asked for ages. People want to know what comes in the hereafter. In the early times they went to the wise men, the philosophers and the prophets of their day. For sure there was another life beyond death. These philosophers would say, 'And the next time the people would go they would be confronted with the answer that the philosophers did not know of the future, what would ever. You die, they would say, and all is darkness.'

"Jesus came and here too revealed. He said, 'I am going away; believe in Me, believe in Me, go to prepare a place for all. Where I am, there you may be also.' In this statement of Jesus Christ we cling our hopes. In this He has dispelled our fear of darkness after death.

"In this early day there were many Messiahs, even as in the present day, claimers of things divine. Jesus came and his doctrine spread. This agitation alarmed the heads of the heads of the Jewish nation and the wise men called a council. They were afraid of Christ and his teachings. They wanted to do away with him. One of their number, however, pleaded that He, like many of the ten present-day reformers and prophets, would soon be forgotten and his doctrine would be quenched.

"And so in my closing thoughts, I find Mr. Bearmore must be telling you about the light of the world. He said, 'I am the light of the world,' and then again he said, 'Ye are the light of the world.' What did he mean? He meant to tell us that the light of the world had come but He was going back to the Father, but in the going back, did not mean the light of revelation would not so disappear. He left it for us to further his doctrine. We are the medium of responsibility. We represent God here on earth, and transmit the light to our neighbors. That light must be the good light of salvation. God has placed this duty on us, on you and me. We cannot afford to shirk this responsibility."

NURSE PRAISE GRIT OF BRITISH TOMMIES

MABEL WILKINSON WRITES TO FOOTVILLE FRIENDS TELLING OF HER EXPERIENCES.

PARIS NO LONGER GAY

Lights are Turned Out at Nine O'Clock and Streets are Deserted
—Everyone Dresses in Black.

The perils of warfare from the standpoint of a nurse with the British army at the front in France, are related in a letter just received by Footville friends of Miss Mabel Wilkenson, a native Canadian but a resident of Chicago for six years past. Miss Wilkenson is well known in Janesville and Footville as she has visited at both places a number of times and has spent her summer vacations at Footville for several years. She left for Hoboken, N. J., on June 10, last, and from there sailed for France where she entered the service as a nurse with the British, expeditionary forces. Miss Wilkenson's latest letter gives an intimate account of some of the hospital scenes. A part of it is as follows:

"Dr. Haven, one of our medical officers, has just been to Paris and he says that it is surely pathetic to see gay old Paris. If you are eating in a restaurant and the clock strikes nine, an officer comes in and asks you to move out. All lights are out at nine o'clock.

"If an aeroplane is seen, a bugler goes through the city to warn people that there is danger so that they may hide in the fireproof fortifications. Everyone is dressed in black. Even the women are doing all of the work, running the autos, street-cars, trains, etc. This is not the case in London, as yet.

"I must tell you a story in the very words that an English Tommy used in telling it to me. He said: 'We were retreating after a particularly heavy charge and a conveyance from whence they were taking us to a hospital. We were packed in pretty close as there had been a terrible heavy slaughter. I noticed a bloke (they call each other 'blokes') sitting on the floor of the cattle train who looked rather white 'around the gills.' I said to him, 'Ain't you feelin' well?' 'Oh, I'm all right,' says he. 'Well, we stopped at a station and those of us who could walk jumped off to get the others a drink. When I comes back I thought the bloke looked awful bad, so I fixed my coat under his head and blew him some blankets around him when I felt something move. I looks under the blanket and sees his leg was off. I asks him about it and he says, 'Yes, I cut it off when my chop went out. It was just hanging by a thread and I couldn't bandage it very well.' The man was brought here to this hospital.

"I wish I could imitate the accent of the English Tommy. At first I could not understand a word they said. I dread the winter campaign. Judging from the weather now it will be very cold. I sleep with two blankets and a rubber sheet over, and still am cold, so what will it be in the winter?

"Thought my cousin must have been killed but I received a letter from him the other day. Both of my brothers are well yet. We have fine times when we are not busy. Just now we are not very busy. The other hospitals must be getting the convicts but we expect one tonight. 'The hospitals are called 'huts'.

Be "heating-ready"—Early!

Do you own a home, or a property to rent or to sell which has been closed for many months past and which carries the stigma (known to many) "poorly heated?" If so, the first thing to do this Fall is to give the building a home-making, tenant-attracting value, by installing an outfit of

AMERICAN & IDEAL RADIATORS & BOILERS

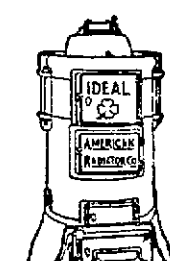

Do it early—when the best artisans are not rushed and prices are favorable. Then you start right; and, as case may be, you insure to your folks, or to any renter or buyer, that the building is going to be warm for all winters to come—free of ashes and coal dust, with full money's worth from every coal bill. To a building formerly heated by old-fashioned devices an IDEAL-AMERICAN outfit adds something never there before, namely—an atmosphere that satisfies. You have an even, balmy, cleanly, generous volume of warmth in every room—always tempered to suit the varying needs of Spring, Fall and Winter. Our special SYLPHON Heat Regulators keep IDEAL Boilers automatically regulated; no over-heating and fuel waste, no under-heating and chilly rooms. You can have comfortable nights, pleasant mornings, cozy evenings—and perpetual freedom from fuel-extravagance or regulating the dampers.

A No. 4-19-W IDEAL Boiler and 270 sq. ft. of 38-in. AMERICAN Radiators, costing the owner $135, were used to heat this cottage. The boiler and radiators are made of any reputable, competent fitter. This did not include cost of labor, pipe, valves, freight, etc., which vary according to climatic and other conditions.

IDEAL Boilers are built with grates, fire pots and heating surfaces which extract the most heat from all fuels—wood, oil, gas, coke, lignite, hard or soft coal—even run-of-mine, pea-coal, screenings, or slack. AMERICAN Radiators are made in every shape necessary for putting under windows, along walls, in corners, pantries, etc., and in special forms for ventilation. All are subjected in our special heating laboratories to highest tests for strength, durability and utmost heating results per pound of fuel burned.

You can make no better building investment, for in IDEAL-AMERICAN heating everything is water-backed "iron-to-iron," no parts to wear out, rust out, or call for packing—no annual over-hauling or repairs bills. These economies, with fuel savings, pay dividends far better than money-in-bank at 6%. Whether in country or city, whether it is an old or new house, store, school, church, etc., write to-day for "Ideal Heating," free and worth reading—no obligations to buy.

IDEAL Boilers will supply ample heat on any fuel. They are made of iron and steel, depending on severity of weather. Every ounce of fuel is made to yield utmost results.

An unfailing, stationary Vacuum Cleaner—in sizes now at $150 up!
You should know about our ARCO WAND Vacuum Cleaner, for dustless, complete cleaning of rooms; furnishings, etc. Sits in basement and cleans through iron suction pipe running to each floor. Easily put in OLD buildings. Fully GUARANTEED. Lasts as long as the building—like radiator heating. Send for catalog.

BIGGEST ROAD CONGRESS COUNTRY HAS EVER SEEN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Oakland, Cal., Sept. 13.—What gives all indications of being the greatest assemblage of road builders ever seen in America, opened here today under the name of the Pan-American Road

Congress. Organizations participating are the American Road Builders Association, the American Highway Association, the Pacific Highway Association and the Tri-State Good Roads Association of Washington, Oregon and California. The Congress has drawn thousands of delegates. Their interests include materials, methods of building, maintenance, financing, engineering and educating the public. Representatives of Canadian provinces and of Central and South American republics give the congress its Pan-American character, but the greatest interest here in suggestions for national and state road-building programs.

Delegates bring the word that almost every section of the country is becoming aroused to the necessity for the value of good roads. The chief question in most communities appears to be methods of financing—whether bonds or direct taxes are preferable; how local bonds should be raised and the matter of sinking funds and bonds requirements.

Gov. Charles W. Gates of Vermont is chairman of the executive committee in charge of the convention, other committee members being Maj. W. W. Crosby of Maryland; James H. McDonald, Connecticut; J. E. Pennbacker of the U. S. office of Public Roads, and E. L. Powers, editor of "Good Roads."

WAR HAS CHECKED DUELLING IN HUNGARY, NOT LAW

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Buda Pest, Hungary, Sept. 13.—In suppression of the duelling mania in Hungary, the war has had a more potent effect in six months than the law had been able to do in twenty years. Up to a year ago, it seemed that nothing could be done to stop duelling. Not only the military, but legal prohibitions, such an important personage as the Minister President, Count Stephen Tisza, continued fighting duels, having had a dozen of his credit, six of them during his term of office, and openly defying all the penalties threatened by law.

In the first six months of the war, the change was so marked that fewer duels were fought during that period than had ordinarily taken place in a single week before. Since last spring not a single case of duelling has been reported in contrast with the fact that during one week in July 1914, fifty-four duels were recorded in Budapest alone.

How public opinion has changed on the question of duelling is shown in a document recently published in the Hungarian papers. A provincial lawyer made some disparaging remarks about the army in the presence of a wounded officer who presented his conduct in very sharp language. The lawyer sent a challenge, but the seconds met and drew up a document setting forth that an officer ready to sacrifice his life for his country was not obliged to give the so-called "satisfaction" and that in the present war the life of every soldier, and of every civilian, was too precious to be risked in duelling.

The Anti-Duelling League, which has long existed in Hungary, expresses the hope that this evil has been overcome, not only for war times but also in peace.

WEATHER FORECAST.

SHOWERS and thunderstorms to night and Tuesday; not much change in temperature.

THE DARDANELLES.

Just what the effect of the opening of the Dardanelles will have upon the price of wheat in the United States is hard to estimate. It is alleged that prices will drop when the great straits are finally in possession of the Allies but the New York Journal of Commerce sums it all up when it says that for many months the allies have been hammering away at the Dardanelles with limited success. What effect the capture of the Dardanelles might have on the question of peace can only be conjectured. Russian wheat has been bottled up for a whole year, and not only would this be released for the markets of Europe, but the surplus of her coming crop would also be available. This would be a serious blow to American farmers, who have raised a record crop, with the idea that it can be sold as readily as that of last year. The United States has 300,000,000 bushels of wheat available for export, which would mean more than that in dollars. Russia may be presumed to have an equal amount stored from her enormous crop of 1914, even allowing for wastage due to the war, and is likely to have as much again from the 1915 crop. But making liberal allowances for all kinds of losses and diversions, Russia must have 500,000,000 bushels of wheat ready to throw onto a market already plentifully provided for. She will naturally sell it at any price she can obtain, being in urgent need of the money it would represent. This requires no gift of second sight to see what demoralization might result in the wheat markets of the world from such an eventuality.

THE DEFICIT WORRIES.

The Wilson administration is somewhat worried on many matters, particularly the steadily increasing deficit. Since July 1st Uncle Sam's expenses have exceeded his receipts by $28,900,000. During the same period of last year, the excess was only $18,000,000. Congressmen are convinced that without special taxation the expenses for the year will exceed the receipts by $100,000,000. Secretary McAdoo says he is not worrying. "There is no country on the globe more able to pay more taxes than the United States, if our expenses are to be increased," he said yesterday, on his return from his vacation in Maine. But the President and others of his advisers are worrying because they realize that the imposition of further taxes will make the Administration unpopular. The experts believe the Administration will have to sell bonds to make good this deficit, even without any increased expenditures for national defense. While the failure of the Underwood bill as a revenue producer is largely responsible for the serious condition of the Treasury, another potent cause is the reckless extravagance with which the Democrats have been spending money for junkets, special commissions, etc. One of these commissions is described as having been so reckless in placing contracts that one man, an expert accountant and a worthy Democrat, is making $100 a day net profit on his contract.

THE LAWS OF ROAD.

There is a seeming intent on the part of some drivers of autos and other vehicles, either due to ignorance or carelessness, to evade the laws of the road traffic particularly within the city limits. Complaint has been made that the motorists fail to obey the order to shut off cut out while driving about the city and it is also true that both motorists and drivers of vehicles that they fail to observe the rules which require them to stop when street cars are taking on or letting off passengers. Another omission in this connection is that motor drivers fail to use their horns when approaching crossings or signal to vehicles behind them when they intend to turn to the right or left. Pedestrians can also be blamed when they walk in a leisurely manner across street intersections when they see cars approaching as though inviting being hit. What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander as well and if all play their part accidents can be averted.

THE HUNTING SEASON.

The hunting season is on but thus far there has been no great decrease in the amount of game in the immediate vicinity of the hunting fields. The much talked of coveys of chickens that have been increasing for the past fifteen years under game law protections, appear for the greater part to have escaped slaughter and but scattered pairs have been obtained by the hunters. However, the season is young yet and the sportsmen have great hopes for the immediate future. Meanwhile the residents of the northern part of the state report plenty of game in sight and some of it is bound to start south soon.

ed by the hunters. However, the season is young yet and the sportsmen have great hopes for the immediate future. Meanwhile the residents of the northern part of the state report plenty of game in sight and some of it is bound to start south soon.

"BITE THE BUBBLE."

If improperly constructed or improperly used, the bubbling drinking fountain may be a greater menace to health than the common drinking cup. The other day an inspector of the U. S. Public Health Service took a seat beside a bubbling drinking fountain in a railway station and watched the way in which it was used. Forty-seven different persons, of whom eleven were men, twenty-two were women, and fourteen were children, used the bubbling fountain. In almost every case the lips were placed almost completely around the metal ball from which the water spouted, and one small boy seemed as if he were trying to swallow it. Several of the men obviously were chewing tobacco. Of the forty-seven people, four were colored, three looked though they might have tuberculosis, and three had an eruption upon the face.

Every person using the bubbling drinking fountain should bear in mind that the object of this sanitary device is to prevent the interchange of mouth secretions. When mucous and other matter becomes attached to metal it sometimes requires considerable force to remove it, and this is not always accomplished by a slowly moving current of water. In using the bubbling fountain the rule should be "Bite the Bubble." The lips should not touch any part of the fountain and under no condition should the fountain be used for rinsing that mouth or for expectorating.

The Daily Novelette

The Bargain.

Henrietta Stiggs knew that Freddy Fow was the closest man in the village, but she promised to marry him to reform him. For fear of Henrietta's father's temper, they planned an elopement.

Henrietta's bedroom window was thirty feet from the ground, so, on the afternoon of the large day, Freddy stopped at the ladder works to buy a thirty-foot ladder.

"Oh, there's one at $2.25 marked down from $18.40," cried Freddy.

"I don't guarantee that one," said the salesman. But Freddy, unable to resist the bargain, bought it, and, at 10:30 that night, adjusted it under Henrietta's window, without knowing, of course, that the fourth step from the top was defective.

While Freddy steadied the ladder from below, Henrietta, with her trunk balanced on her head (she was a clever kid), climbed out the window, thirty feet above, and started to descend. She is now on the first step from the top of Freddy's bargain ladder.

She is now on the second step from the top.

She is now on the third step from the top.

She is now on the fourth step from the top.

Freddy was directly underneath.

Kernels of The Law

Landlord and Tenant.

When there is a renting of premises without a lease showing the terms of the agreement, the law nevertheless implies certain rights and obligations on the part of both parties. A covenant for quiet enjoyment is implied on the part of the landlord. But the landlord is under no implied legal obligation to repair or to rebuild. He may recover rent though the building is destroyed by the act of God, or the public enemy, or is burned, or injured by unavoidable accident during the term unless he has expressly agreed to repair. Uninhabitableness is no defense in an action for the rent and there is no law to prevent a landlord from renting a tumbledown building.

The tenant is bound to take ordinary care of the premises; and to keep them in tenable condition; and to make all repairs made necessary by his use of the same or by his negligence. He must deliver up the premises in as good condition as when he rented them, barring ordinary wear and tear, hence he must replace broken windows or doors. In case of farm property he must cultivate the land in a good husbandlike manner, repair division fences, and not commit waste.

Speaking about enclosing your name and address in goods that are being shipped out of a factory reminds us of the time when we were a newwed we found the address of a Battle Creek woman in a package of breakfast food. Both the missus and me had great fun beginning a correspondence with the unsuspecting female, and for a while everything went merry as a marriage bell, until we began to hold the young lady's replies cut from the partner of our joys and sorrows—mostly the latter—and tell her the girl had quit writing to us. Then one day came our wedding-mother found one of her letters in our Sunday coat and though that has been some sixteen years ago, we have never had the courage to as much as glance in the direction of a strange female, let alone write love sonnets to one.

"I shall be glad to afford you any (that I can) of the two," he replied.

"Well," said the farmer, "my boy n' mine wants to go into the literary business, an' I thought you would know if there was any money in it."

"It's a good business," said the editor, "but I've been in it myself for some years, and—"

Whereupon the farmer eyed him from head to foot, glanced around the poorly furnished office, surveyed the editor once more, and then, turning to his son, said: "Come 'long home, Jim, and get back to yer plowin'."

PLANS FOR DORMITORY FOR NORMAL APPROVED

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
MADISON, Wis., Sept. 13.—Plans for a dormitory at the Stevens Point Normal school, to cost $100,000, were approved by the state board of education Saturday afternoon. Contracts for the heating, plumbing, tile and marble work at the Stevens Point school were ratified. The university was authorized to prepare plans for a soils building, and the board also approved the plans and contracts for a new physics building, which is already under construction. The salary budgets for the normal schools and the university were allowed, and a committee consisting of E. P. Cary and John S. Donald was directed to make inquiries into the necessity of allowing current expenditures at those institutions, with power to authorize them.

Conscription is inevitable in England in the near future, because after a year of war, conscription represents the nation's hope of winning. Only through conscription can the war department get enough men to make it possible for England to meet her obligations to her colonies and her allies.

This was the opinion of the late Lord Roberts, and today it is the opinion of such leaders of British thought as Lord Northcliffe, editor of the London Times and Daily Mail; the Marquis of Lansdowne, formerly secretary of war and later foreign secretary and now a member of the coalition cabinet; Lloyd George, minister of munitions; and Lord Haldane, lord high chancellor of England.

JANESVILLE SHIPPERS IN LEAGUE TO BATTLE DISCRIMINATIVE RATES

LOCAL MANUFACTURING INTERESTS BEGIN A MOVEMENT FOR RATE REDUCTION.

THEIR ATTORNEYS BUSY

Charges To Be Filed With State Railroad Commission and Also With Interstate Commerce Commission.

Complaints that freight rates, both state and interstate, are discriminatory against southern Wisconsin manufacturers and business concerns have been prepared by the traffic boards of the Janesville Commercial club, the Madison Chamber of Commerce and the Beloit Business commission and the state railroad commission joining with Janesville, Madison and Beloit shippers and manufacturers of Watertown, Stoughton, Evansville and other intermediate towns between Chicago and Madison and Madison and Milwaukee. The movement is headed by the Janesville Madison and Beloit advancement association and is the first instance of the union of business interests in so large a section of Wisconsin for the sole purpose of solving problems of mutual concern.

Providing the complaint receives favorable attention from the Interstate Commerce commission it will mean a saving of several thousands of dollars annually to Janesville alone.

Secretaries of the advancement bodies favoring the move have collected figures and other exhaustive data which is in hands of traffic attorneys at Chicago.

The southern Wisconsin shippers, through their traffic managers and attorneys, in co-operation with the shippers of the Fox river valley are filing a complaint with the state railroad commission, that rates within the state be put on a more equitable basis. It is contended that Wisconsin manufacturers do not have the advantages offered by manufacturers in other states.

It is said that the complaint will show that first class rates in Wisconsin for 50 miles are 45 per cent higher than in Iowa, 32 per cent higher than in Minnesota, 24 per cent higher than in Illinois. For 100 miles Wisconsin rate said to be 80 per cent higher than in Iowa, 20 per cent higher than in Minnesota and 25 per cent higher than in Illinois.

The complaint to the interstate commerce commission will attack the freight rates from and to points east of Chicago, in what is known as "Central Freight Association" and "Trunk Line Territories" to Janesville and adjacent cities. The shippers complain that receivers of freight moving from points east pay the same charges on freight to Janesville and southern Wisconsin points as do the receivers of freight at Winona, Minn., although this point is 235 miles northwest of Madison.

Among the larger shippers joining in the complaint are: Gisholt Machine Co., Pullman Co., L. O. Gould, Wells, Fargo & Co., L. O. Gould, C. French Battery Co., Tockenauer Candy Co., Klueber & Co., Keeley, Neckerman & Kessenich Co., all of Madison; Fairbanks-Morse Co., Beloit; and a large number of big Janesville firms.

The complaint will go on to recite the unreasonableness of the rates, the class and commodity, from the territory named and will exemplify rates for representative points to Madison, showing the existing schedules, on the basis of local rates to Janesville and adjacent cities, and also on a percentage basis.

It will be shown that rates from trunk line territory to southern Wisconsin points are discriminatory in that they are made up of the sum of local to Chicago or Milwaukee, and proportional rates to Madison, Janesville or Beloit.

Shippers said that among complaining shippers are to be found a large proportion of the shippers of Wisconsin outside of the lake shore district. The freight charges on all three roads entering Madison alone for the year 1914, it is reported, amount to $1,000,000, and that of this sum 50 per cent was paid as charges on freight from points in territory east of Chicago.

The committee representing the cities of southern Wisconsin which will make complaint to the interstate commerce commission took under consideration the petitioning of the state railroad commission to file this complaint with the federal commission. It was, however, decided that the interests of the shippers would be promoted by filing the complaint directly with the interstate commerce commission. Hence the various commercial organizations and shippers are parties to the complaint.

What promises to be a hard fought controversy with far reaching effects to both railroad and shippers, has been placed by the complaint in the hands of Interstate Commerce Attorneys Borders, Walter & Burchmore of Chicago, and Sam T. Swensen of the firm of Richmond, Jackson & Swensen of Madison.

"My, Miss Blanche! What a voice. And your old lady-in-waiting figured I should find you down!"
Hilton Toye was already a landman and a Londoner from top to toe. He was perfectly dressed—for Bond Street—and his native simplicity of bearing and address placed him as surely and firmly in the present picture. But Cazalet did, in an instant; his old bush clothes changed at once into a merely shabby suit of despicable cut; the romance dropped out of them and their wearers, as he stood like a trussed turkey-cock, and watched a bunch of Bothouse flowers presented to the lady with a little gem of a natural, courteous, and yet characteristically racy speech.

To the lady, mark you; for she was one on the spot; and Cazalet was a man again, and making a mighty effort to behave himself because the hour of boy and girl was over.
"Mr. Cazalet," said Toye. "I guess you want to know what in thunder I'm doing on your tracks so soon. It's hog-luck, sir, because I wanted to see you quite a lot, but I never thought I'd strike you right here. Did you hear the news?"
"No! What?"

There was no need to inquire as to the class of news; the immediate past had come back with Toye into Cazalet's life; and even in Blanche's presence, even in her schoolroom, the old days had flown into their proper place and she in the perspective.

"There's made an arrest," said Toye; and Cazalet nodded as though he had quite expected it, which set Blanche off trying to remember something he had said at the other house; but she had not succeeded when she noticed the curious pallor of his chin and forehead.

"Scruton?" he just asked.
"Yes, sir! This morning," said Hilton Toye.

"You don't mean the poor man?" cried Blanche, looking from one to the other.
"Yes, he does," said Cazalet gloomily. He stared out at the river, seeing nothing in his turn, though one of the anglers was actually busy with his reel.

"But I thought Mr. Scruton was still—," Blanche remembered him, remembered dancing with him; she did not like to say, "in prison."
"He came out the other day," sighed Cazalet. "But how like the police all over! Give a dog a bad name, and trust them to hunt it down and shoot it at sight!"

"I judge it's not so bad as all that in this country," said Hilton Toye. "That's more like the police theory than, Scruton, I guess, bar drawing the bead."
"When did you hear of it?" said Cazalet.

It was on the tape at the Savoy when I got there. So I made an inquiry, and I figured to look in at the Kingston Court on my way to call upon Miss Blanche. You see, I was kind of interested in all you'd told me about the case."

"Well? That was my end of the situation. As luck and management would have it between them, I was in time to hear your man—"

"Not my man, please! You thought of him yourself," said Cazalet sharply.
"Well, anyway, I was in time to hear the proceedings opened against him. They were all over in about a minute. He was remanded till next week."

"How did he look?" and, "Had he a beard?" demanded Cazalet and Blanche simultaneously.

"He looked like a sick man," said Toye, with something more than his usual deliberation in answering or asking questions. "Yes, Miss Blanche, he had a beard worthy of a free citizen."

"They let them grow one, if they like, before they come out," said Cazalet, with the nod of knowledge.

"Then I guess he was a wise man not to take it off," rejoined Hilton

Toye. "That would only prejudice his case, if it's going to be one of identity, with that head gardener playing lead in the witness-stand."
"Old Savage!" snorted Cazalet. "Why, he was a dotard in our time; they couldn't hang a dog on his evidence!"

"Still," said Blanche, "I'd rather have it than circumstantial evidence, wouldn't you, Mr. Toye?"

"No, Miss Blanche, I would not," replied Toye, with unhesitating candor. "The worst evidence in the world, in my opinion, and I've given the matter some thought, is the evidence of identity." He turned to Cazalet, who had betrayed a quickened interest in his views. "Shall I tell you why? Think how often you're not so sure if you have seen a man before or if you never have! You kind of shrink from nodding, or else you nod wrong; if you didn't ever have that feeling, then you're not like any other man I know."

"I have!" cried Cazalet. "I've had it all my life, even in the wilds; but I never thought of it before."

"Think of it now," said Toye, "and you'll see there may be flaws in the best evidence of identity that money can buy. But circumstantial evidence can't lie, Miss Blanche, if you get enough of it. If the links fit in, to prove that a certain person was in a certain place at a certain time, I guess that's worth all the oaths of all the eye-witnesses that ever saw daylight!"

Cazalet laughed harshly, as for no apparent reason he led the way into the garden. "Mr. Toye's made a study of these things," he fired over his shoulder. "He should have been a Sherlock Holmes, and rather wishes he was one!"

"Give me time," said Toye, laughing. "I may come along that way yet."

Cazalet faced him in a frame of tangled greenery. "You told me you wouldn't!"

"I did, sir, but that was before they put salt on this poor old crook. If you're right, and he's not the man, shouldn't you say that rather altered the situation?"

CHAPTER VI

Voluntary Service.

"And why do you think he can't have done it?"

Cazalet had trundled the old canoe over the rollers, and Blanche was hardly paddling in the glassy strip alongside the weir. Below the lock there had been something to do, and Blanche had done it deftly and silently, with almost equal capacity and grace. It had given her a charming flush and sparkle; and what with the sun's bare hand on her yellow hair, she now looked even bonnier than in doors, yet not quite, quite such a girl. But then every bit of the boy had gone out of Cazalet. So that hour stolen from the past was up forever.

"Why do the police think the other thing?" he retorted. "What have they got to go on? That's what I want to know. I agree with Toye in one thing." Blanche looked up quickly. "I wouldn't trust old Savage an inch. I've been thinking about him and his previous evidence. Do you realize that it's quite dark now soon after seven? It was pretty thick saying his man was bareheaded, with neither hat nor cap left behind to prove it! Yet now it seems he's put a beard to him, and next we shall have the color of his eyes!"

Blanche laughed at his vigor of phrase; this was more like the old, hot-tempered, sometimes rather overbearing Sweep. Something had made him jump to the conclusion that Scruton could not possibly have killed Mr. Craven, whatever else he might have done in days gone by. So it simply was impossible, and anybody who took the other side would have to reckon henceforth with Sweep Cazalet.

Mr. Toye already had reckoned with him, in a little debate begun outside the old summer schoolroom at Littleford, and adjourned rather than finished at the iron gate into the road. In her heart of hearts Blanche could not say that Cazalet had the best of the argument. Toye had advanced a general principle with calm ability, but Cazalet could not be shifted from the particular position he was so eager to defend, and would only enter into abstract questions to beg them out of hand.

Blanche rather thought that neither quite understood what the other meant; but she could not blink the fact that the old friend had neither the dialectical mind nor the unfailing courtesy of the new. That being so, with her perception she might have changed the subject; but she could see that Cazalet was thinking of nothing else; and no wonder, since they were approaching the scene of the tragedy and his own old home, with each long dip of her paddle.

It had been his own wish to start upstream; but she could see the wistful pain in his eyes as they fell once more upon the red turrets and the smooth green lawn of Uplands; and she neither spoke nor looked at him again until he spoke to her.

"I see they've got the blinds down still," he said detachedly. "What's happened to Mrs. Craven?"

"I hear she went into a nursing home before the funeral."

"I expect we should find Savage somewhere. Would you very much mind, Blanche? I should rather like—"

But even that effective final pronoun failed to bring any buoyancy back into his voice; for it was not in the least effective as he said it, and he no longer looked her in the face. But this all seemed natural to Blanche, in the manifold and overlapping circumstances of the case. She made for the inlet at the upper end of the lawn.

And her prompt unquestioning acquiescence shamed Cazalet into further and franker explanation, before he could let her land to please him. "You don't know how I feel this!" he exclaimed quite miserably. "I mean about poor old Scruton; he's gone through so much as it is, whatever he may have done to deserve it long ago. Is it conceivable that he should go and do a thing like this the very moment he gets out? I ask you, is it even conceivable?"

Blanche understood him. And now she showed herself golden to the core, almost as an earnest of her fitness for the fires before her.

"Poor fellow," she cried, "he has a friend in you, at any rate! And I'll help you to help him, if there's any way I can."

He clutched her hand, but only as he might have clutched a man's.

"You can't do anything; but I won't forget that," he almost choked. "I meant to stand by him in a very different way. He'd been down to the depths, and he'd come up a bit; then he was good to me as a lad, and it was my father's partner who was the ruin of him. I seemed to owe him something, and now—now I'll stand by him whatever happens and—whatever has happened!"

Then they landed in the old inlet. Cazalet knew every knot in the post to which he tied Blanche's canoe.

It was a very different place, this Uplands, from poor old Littleford on the lower reach. The grounds were five or six acres instead of about one, and a house in quite another class stood farther back from the river and very much farther from the road.

The inlet began the western boundary, which continued past the boat-house in the shape of a high hedge, a herbaceous border (not what it had been in the old days), and a gravel path. This path was screened from the lawn by a bank of rhododendrons, as of course were the back yard and kitchen premises, past which it led into the front garden, eventually debouching into the drive. It was the path along which Cazalet led the way this afternoon, and Blanche at his heels was so struck by something that she could not help telling him he knew his way very well.

"Every inch of it!" he said bitterly. "But so I ought, if anybody does."

"But these rhododendrons weren't here in your time. They're the one improvement. Don't you remember how the path ran round to the other end of the yard? This gate into it wasn't made."

"No more it was," said Cazalet, as they came up to the new gate on the right. It was open, and looking through they could see where the old gateway had been bricked. The rhododendrons topped the yard wall at that point, masking it from the lawn, and making on the whole an improvement of which anybody but a former son of the house might have taken more account.

He said he could see no other change. But for the fact that these windows were wide open, the whole place seemed as deserted as Littleford; but just past the windows, and flush with them, was the tradesmen's door, and the two trespassers were barely abreast of it when this door opened and disgorged a man.

The man was at first sight a most incongruous figure for the back premises of any house, especially in the country. He was tall, rather stout, very powerfully built and rather handsome in his way; yet not for one moment was this personage in the picture, in the sense in which Hilton Toye had stepped into the Littleford picture.

"May I ask what you're doing here?" he demanded bluntly of the male intruder.

"No harm, I hope," replied Cazalet, smiling much to his companion's relief. She had done him an injustice, however, in dreading an explosion when they were both obviously in the wrong, and she greatly admired the tone he took so readily. "I know we've no business here whatever; but it happens to be my old home, and I only landed from Australia last night. I'm on the river for the first time, and simply had to have a look around."

The other big man had looked far from propitiated by the earlier of these remarks, but the closing sentences had worked a change.

"Are you young Mr. Cazalet?" he cried.

"I am, or rather I was," laughed Cazalet, still on his mettle.

"You've read all about the case then, I don't mind betting!" exclaimed the other with a jerk of his topper toward the house behind him.

"I've read all I found in the papers last night and this morning, and such arrears as I've been able to lay my hands on," said Cazalet. "But, as I tell you, my ship only got in from Australia last night, and I came round all the way in her. There was nothing in the English papers when we touched at Genoa."

"I see, I see." The man was still looking him up and down. "Well, Mr. Cazalet, my name's Drinkwater, and I'm from Scotland Yard. I happen to be in charge of the case."

"I guessed as much," said Cazalet and this surprised Blanche more than anything else from him. Yet nothing about him was any longer like the Sweep of other days, or of any previous part of that very afternoon. And this was also easy to understand on reflection; for if he meant to stand by the hapless Scruton, guilty or not guilty, he could not perhaps begin better than by getting on good terms with the police. But his ready tact and in that case cunning, were certainly a revelation to one who had known him marvelously as boy and youth.

"I mustn't ask questions," he continued, "but I see you're still searching for things, Mr. Drinkwater."

The mayor and council of the city of Janesville having determined that water main extensions be made and paid for by special assessment upon the following named streets, to-wit:
On Palm street from Pleasant street to a point midway between Center street and School street.
On Glen street from Cornelia street to the east line of Thomas street.
On Monroe street from the north end of the present two inch main to the south end of the present one inch main on said street.
Now therefore, notice is hereby given that the Board of Public Works will meet on the 17th day of Sept., 1915, at 2:00 in the afternoon, at their office in the city hall of said city for the purpose of making such assessment, and that all persons interested may appear and be heard upon the matter of the assessment and the apportionment of the expense of laying said water main extensions among the lots, parts of lots and parcels of land fronting or abutting on each side of said streets or avenues.

You are hereby summoned to appear within twenty (20) days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service, and defend the above entitled action in the Court aforesaid; and in case of your failure so to do, judgment will be rendered against you according to the demand of the verified complaint, which was filed in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Rock County, Wisconsin, August 19, 1915.

GALLIOLI-FIGHT SINCE START HAS BEEN UNCHANGED

Lines On Peninsula Are Almost the Same as When Turks and Allies First Dug Their Trenches.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Constantinople, Sept. 12.—Exactly three months have passed since the "position" war between the Allies and the Turks, at Ari Burnu and Seddul-Bahr started. On May 4, occupied the trenches in which, with few exceptions, they are still found today.

Offensives by the Allies and counter-offensives by the Turks have led to but slight changes in the terrain occupied immediately after the landing of the Allied troops during the last week of April. At Ari Burnu very little terrain has been lost by either side. While temporary changes have been somewhat greater and more frequent at Seddul-Bahr, both Turks and Allies have strained constantly every resource to regain what has been lost. In most cases, the Allies have recovered lost trenches by virtue of overwhelming bombardments, while the Turks have retaken their lost trenches at the point of bayonet as a rule. Later, too, the sapper's mine has been often employed by both sides when a trench of the opponent had to be "taken," or when a trench had to be re-occupied.

During the last three weeks "position" fighting on the Gallipoli peninsula has diminished to what may be termed its minimum. The Turks have not pressed the offensive, for the time being. Little was to be gained by driving the French and English forces from the peninsula. It has been argued here, that so long as the Allies are at Ari Burnu and Seddul-Bahr, other landing operations elsewhere are unlikely. The Allies landed on the peninsula under the cover of a naval artillery fire which has not yet been forgotten by the Turks. To have the same experience on some other part of the European, or Asiatic, coast does not appeal to the Turks.

Allies Inactive. Meanwhile the naval and land artillery of the Allies is no longer as active as it has been. The action radius of both arms has been greatly limited by the nearness to one another of the opposing trenches. Several weeks ago, the Allies and Turks tried to make bombardment of the other side's trenches easy and safe by marking their own trenches with little white signs. The first step in this direction was taken by the Allies. But the Allies soon discovered what had been done, and placed similar signs along their trenches. Then the British and French trenches were marked with a light yellow sign for the guidance of the Allied naval and land artillery. The Turks learned of this and placed similar signs along their own trenches. Several bombardments attempted after that led to shooting one's own positions. Since then the trench has become the safest place against artillery fire near the front.

That the artillery markers, the signs spoken of, are of no value when exposed by both sides, is due to the fact that the lines of trenches run in and out of one another, and that, usually, either side must so label several trenches running parallel to the advance position which established the boundary of the terrain that may be shelled without placing friendly troops in jeopardy. This condition is largely responsible for the long spell of inactivity which the Allied fleet has had, though the presence of the German submarines has also had a restraining effect. Everything considered, it may be said that under present conditions, the Turkish artillery on the peninsula can do as much work as the numerically greatly superior Allied artillery.

No Speedy Advance. On the British and French troops this has no good influence. As an infantryman, the Turk is fully the equal, if not the superior, of the Frenchman and Britisher. In addition, the Anatolian peasant, who forms fully 55 per cent of the Turkish force on the peninsula, has the advantage of being used to the climate, which during the summer has made itself felt in a surplus of sweating heat. Together with the chronic idleness of the Allied ships, these circumstances seem to have caused a feeling in the British and French trenches, which does not bode well for a speedy advance on Constantinople.

There is no longer any doubt that the Allies believed firmly that the Turkish artillery would soon be without ammunition. Prisoners of war, and captured stores and devices found in the Allied trenches, have again and again refuted this. But this state of affairs has never set in. During the last two weeks, the Turkish batteries at Ari Burnu, Seddul-Bahr and on the Anatolian shore of the Dardanelles have been very active, and have shown that there is no lack of ammunition to be hoped for, owing to the resourcefulness of the men forming the Ottoman General Staff. Employees of the Krupp establishment are making artillery ammunition of all sorts in and near this city. The Turks have the situation so well in hand now that even shells of the largest calibres are being turned out under the management of German ordnance officers brought here for the purpose. Even an infantry rifle factory is now in operation.

The coming of autumn will render the position of the Allied troops on the peninsula even more precarious, should they have failed by that time to advance considerably beyond their present positions. So far the Allies have found it impossible to establish near Seddul-Bahr and Ari Burnu the supply bases that will be needed when during the fall and winter months bad weather will make it impossible to ship from the adjacent islands of Imbros, Lemnos and Tenedos, in the piecemeal fashion in which this is now done, the food and ammunition required by the Allied troops. Large supply ships nearing the coast of the peninsula are regularly driven off by the Turkish artillery. As the result of this the vessels are generally lighted out to the open sea, and the barges brought in during the night. With a high sea running in the fall and winter this will be a difficult undertaking. So immense will be the supply problems of the Allied forces on the peninsula then that an evacuation may become necessary, according to well-informed officers here. In heretofore with this, the Turkish batteries have for some time taken under fire anything that gave the impression that it contained stores for immediate or future use. During the last three weeks, five such magazines have been destroyed by the Turkish shells.

Consider Retreat. Meanwhile much interest is shown here in the modus operandi the Allies would employ in removing their troops from the peninsula. The Allies could not evacuate all of their positions, and re-embark their men in a single night, the time best suited for this. The Turks undoubtedly, it is believed here, would learn of the retreat and by a series of assaults turn it into a terrible rout, which would have its end in the shore waters of the peninsula. Under the cover of a large fleet, the re-embarking of the Allied troops might be less difficult, but here again the German submarines must be taken into consideration. Transport and men-of-war might fall their prey alike.

Even the most conservative review of the Allies' position on the Gallipoli peninsula as seen from the Turkish side leaves little in favor of the French and English troops, though, no doubt, as everybody here admits, their fate will be decided on the battlefields of the East and West. Whether the landing of a large Italian force, so much spoken of recently, would change the situation materially depends upon developments incident to this operation. Certain it is that today there is no locality suitable for a landing of the Italians which has not been prepared for their reception.

TORRENTIAL RAINS FLOOD ENTIRE VALLEY OF ROCK COUNTY

Lake Monona rose eight inches, and Lake Mendota, five inches, and pier and boat houses on the city side were inundated.

Washouts on Northwestern line at Oregon and Evansville, delayed trains from two to seven hours. The Milwaukee road asked the Northwestern company to handle its trains between Madison and Janesville because of damage to its own tracks. Telegraph and telephone wires are down in the same section.

Storms Hits Milwaukee. Milwaukee, Sept. 12.—Milwaukee was visited by the worst electrical and rain storm of the year on Sunday. Beginning at four o'clock in the afternoon, it rained steadily and intermittently in torrents until early morning. Great flashes of lightning lighted the city periodically during the night. Three places were struck.

Hundreds of cellars in the lower portions of the city, especially the district near the town of Lake, were flooded and the fire departments received many calls from families whose basements were small lakes. Little of any importance was done. The first burst was accompanied by a small gale, which however, did little damage. But the rain fell in sheets for an hour, between 4 to 5 o'clock, and the streets were rivers, and sewers overflowed.

Short Circuits Cause Fires. The constant play of the lightning disturbed telephones and telegraphs, and many little freaks, such as putting a letter or two of an electric sign out, or crossing electric wires to small fires, were recorded. Some damage was also done to crops throughout the state, especially corn.

It was a queer storm. It seemed to circle around the city, or rather to pass over and turn and come back, to repeat again. Hundreds of persons were drenched by the suddenness with which the storm returned several times, and hundreds were left at lakes and resorts because the roads were impassable. Their owners generally took trains into the city, but many remained where they were over night.

Darkness Settles Over City. The approach of the storm, after a beautiful afternoon, was heralded for an hour by ominous looking clouds coming from the west and northwest. Finally, about four o'clock, the city was thrown into a midnight darkness and residences, cafes and hotels lit up.

Besides responding to three lightning fires and finding themselves unable to assist at another because of lack of water, the fire department was the recipient of several freak calls during the storm period.

Anthony Hartel, a farmer, living on the Eighth avenue road, south of the city, lost his stock barn, granary and several stacks of hay when lightning set fire to the barn. He appealed to the Milwaukee department for help, but as they could get no water in the vicinity, there was no help for him. His stock was all saved. The loss was several thousand dollars.

When you think of Insurance think of C. P. Beers.—Adv.

Mixed. There is a man living in Langhorne, Pa., who amuses himself by grafting all sorts of plants upon other plants. He has invented the "table d'hôte" tree, formerly a peach tree that did its full duty in bearing peaches but that now bears apples, plums and cherries as well, besides supporting grafts of cedar, rose, hemlock, blackberry and lilac. With what curiosity the peach tree's relatives must look upon it!

GAY COLORS BANNED

UNIFORMS OF SOLDIERS ARE NO LONGER CONSPICUOUS.

Elaborate Costumes That Were Worn by Combatants of the Last Two Centuries Are No Longer Seen on the Battlefield.

The soldier's dress has been simplified to bare necessities. It was otherwise in the old times. The military regulations of the eighteenth and the greater part of the nineteenth centuries furnish one long record of alterations of costume, of solemn injunctions as to laces, loops, frogs, buttons, facings, epaulets, "wings," and what not.

The dressing of the soldier's hair was a special object of concern. Until the end of the eighteenth century the hair was an elaborate arrangement of grease and powder. Three shillings per man was the allowance in 1794 for these two toilet adjuncts, and the cost to the country four shillings four pence for pipe-clay and whitening with which to furnish up his white breeches and leather appurtenances. To make up for this outlay he was expected to make shift with the renewal of only half of his waistcoat—the fore part—the hind part having to be made out of that of the preceding year! So ran the regulations of 1783.

In 1795 powder was discontinued by the non-coms and the rank and file, but it was still the regulation for officers. When the Twenty-ninth—now the Worcestershire—one of the trimmest regiments in the army, was stationed at Weymouth in 1797 an order was issued directing that the hair was to be dressed "with one curl on each side; the toupee turned and not too long; the club to be tied high and to be more broad at the top than at the bottom; the rosette to be all ribband and not more than eight inches in diameter, the ribband and rosette to be perfectly black and put on after powdering."

The Grenadiers and light infantry officers were to have their hair dressed "the same as the men, excepting their side locks, which may come down so as to cover the open part of the ear, but never lower, and must be frizzed so as not to blow about." Queues were worn until 1808.

The soldier's hat has been the subject of continual experiment and change, from the picturesque hat of 1688, with its broad brim turned up on one side and ornamented with white ribbon, to the mean looking Broderick cap. In 1751 the three-cornered cocked hat was in favor; then came the imposing miter cap, converting the wearer into a sort of miniature pope; and this was followed by a bearskin of a similar shape. In 1778 light infantry wore leather caps almost as small as skull caps, with a large round peak. The officer's hat of 1788 was a most elaborate and expensive affair, ornamented with the finest black ostrich feathers, with a standup feather of red and black.

The shako, the most hideous hat ever contrived, commenced its long reign in 1800, when it supplanted the cocked hat. Originally it was of lacquered felt, with a peak, a large brass plate in front and a red and black tuft on the crown rising from a small black cockade; and after many variations it disappeared in 1878, when the cork helmet became the regulation hat, in its turn to be superseded by the khaki cap, which, all things considered, is about the best headgear yet devised.—London Globe.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX WORKING ON NEW ALLEGORICAL PLAY "VICTORY"

Ella Wheeler Wilcox (right) and Ruth Helen Davis, at former's summer home, Short Beach, Conn.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox and Ruth Helen Davis have just completed an allegorical play which they have called "Victory." The idea has been taken from the world war now in progress. The play, in which there will be more than one hundred characters, will be produced at "The Anchorage," the magnificent estate of Mrs. Simon Baruch, who is a regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution, at Long Branch, N. J.

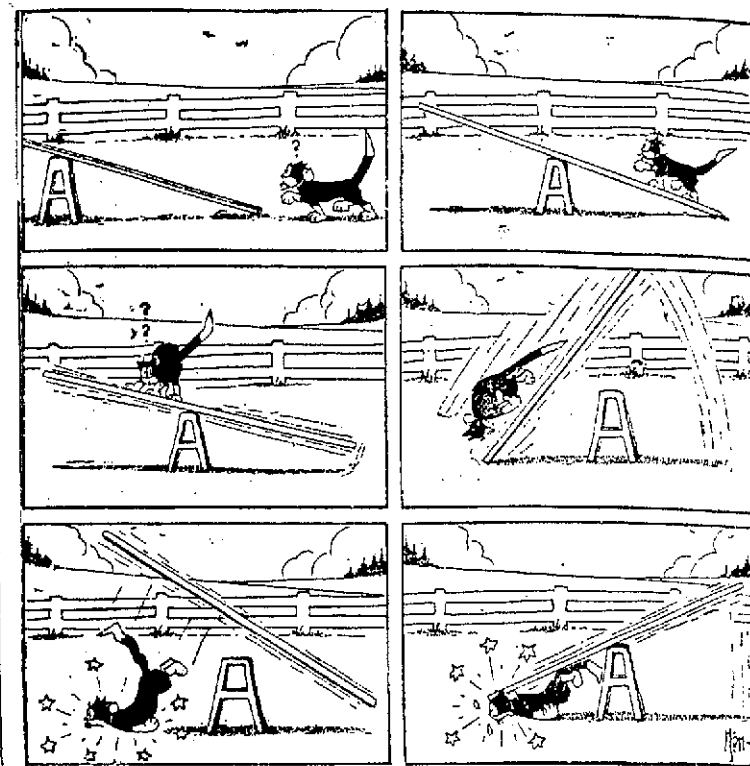

OUGHT SCHOOL TEACHERS TO HAVE A UNION? QUESTION TROUBLES CHICAGO

Should school teachers be permitted to form a union? This question is stirring Chicago, and a court fight impends. On one side is School Trustee Jacob Loeb, who is leading the battle to have the Chicago Teachers' Federation outlawed. Miss Margaret Haley is president of the federation, and is putting up a fight for its continuance. Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of Chicago schools, is believed to favor the federation.

BANG! BANG!

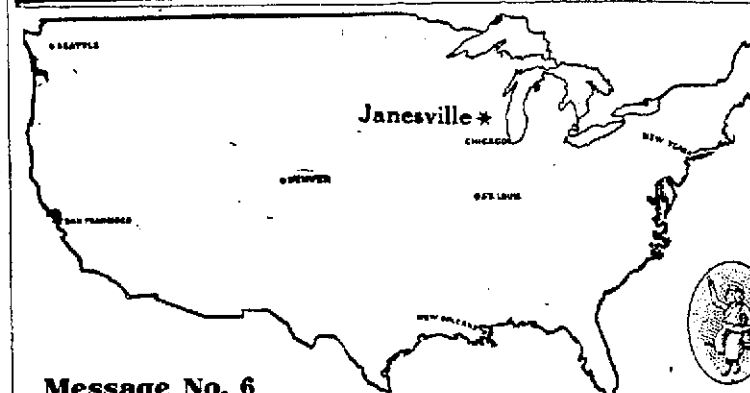

WOUNDED SOLDIERS NOW AT FAMED RESORTS

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Trouville, France, Sept. 13.—The horse show, horse races and other social attractions which have brought the elite of society here at this season every year are lacking, but the famous resort is still lively with a throng on the broadwalk that is made up largely of convalescent soldiers and their nurses. Some of the best hotels are hospitals, some of the elegant villas also, but there are enough children to prevent the beach from being submerged in gloom. The sands of Trouville are also the scene of interesting military operations. All along the beach from Deauville to Trouville there is an almost unbroken series of trenches built by the contingents of 1930 to 1935, now in their fifth to tenth year, who are working under the direction of convalescent soldiers. Barbers are obliged to give the countersign in order to pass, and then, they are distinctly informed, it is at their own risk and peril, for there are landmines everywhere in imitation of those at the front. If a high west wind fills the trenches with sea water, recalling the winter campaign along the Yser, it heightens the joy of the five to ten year old "boilies" who jump into them in their bathing suits and make noise than ever.

Women's Sacred Rights. One reason a woman will not permit her husband to criticize her friends is that she considers it an invasion of her sacred rights.—Topeka State Capital.

Message No. 6 To the Business Men of Janesville

When a run-down salesman calls on you, do you buy his goods? Aren't you afraid of his line because he looks as if no one ever gave him an order?

Same thing is true of a seedy town. To be prosperous it must look prosperous and show local pride.

Clean streets, nice stores and well-painted buildings pay because they bring business. Paint-hungry buildings are least excusable, for paint made of

ITALIANS WIN VICTORY IN HIGH ALPS

Chateau of Buchenstein after Italian bombardment.

The famous chateau of Buchenstein, surmounting a lofty peak in the Alps, was strongly fortified by the Austrians. This place kept the Italians back for weeks until it was stormed by the Bersaglieri. The capture of this fortification was regarded as a great victory by the Italians.
